Hey Y'all! I'm Kelian

FOUNDER & OWNER

Pretty little details and a good dance party make me squeal with happiness, but my obsession with wedding planning goes a little beyond that. I know weddings are one of the most sacred and joyous experiences in a couple's lifetime. I make it a priority to deeply understand each client's vision, their likes and dislikes, and tailor events to reflect their unique character. I truly believe that each moment should illuminate the authentic personality of the client, not the desire of the planner, and that is what sets my team and I apart from others—we listen to you. I am a South Texas native and mother to five fur babies - Brody, Sarah, Bennett, Jace, and Jenny. When I am not wedding planning, you can find me fishing, traveling, spending time with my family, trying new coffee shops, and cheering on the Fightin' Texas Aggies! Whoop!

I am so excited to meet you, share ideas over coffee - even a cocktail, and get to know each other! And since everything is often bigger in Texas, don't worry if your guest list feels large, your wish list feels endless, or your weekend itinerary has several events to juggle—that's all completely in my wheelhouse and I can't wait to discuss it all with you talk to you soon!

You've got the ring - now it's time to plan the thing! Overwhelmed and not sure where to begin the wedding planning process? No worries! We've got your back! Before you start jumping into color schemes and floral arrangements, take a moment to sip on some champagne and enjoy the sweetness of being engaged. It's no lie that planning a wedding can be stressful and somewhat intimidating, but you can put your trust in us and we will point you in all the right directions!

1. Set a Budget

Before you start making any other decisions, the dreaded budget conversation has to be had. It is the best place to start because it sets up the stage for everything else. Don't be afraid to reach out to a wedding planner! They can share with you what things cost and bring your vision to life.

4. Book a Wedding Planner

We highly recommend booking a wedding planner and involving them in every decision from the get-go. Not only are wedding planners great for design, logistics, and execution, but they are fountains of knowledge when it comes to reliable vendors, legal matters, and so much more!

2. Compile your Guest List

It's a good idea to gather a rough guest list at the beginning stages of wedding planning because your overall budget and venue will both rely significantly on how many guests will be attending.

5. Book your Photographer

A professional wedding photographer should be one of the first vendors you book. Photographers book up quickly so be prepared to book well in advance. We're talking at least a year! Make a list of photographers whose style you love and start inquiring.

3. Book your Venue Set a Date

Aside from a wedding planner, your venue is the first booking you want to make! Remember: you can't book a date until you book your dream venue. While the venue may be one of your most expensive bookings, make sure you have enough budget remaining for your must-have vendors.

6. Choose your Wedding Style

Visit with your fiancé and gather inspiration! Envision the type of wedding you both want. From romantic, modern elegant, to art-deco or trendy bohemian, pick a style that tells your love story.
